Permits Required For Brush Burning

The statutory forest fire season, during which permits for slash burning and other precautions are required, begins today with conditions offering little immediate danger anywhere in the Pacific Northwest, according to reports from the Western Forestry and Conservation association. The wet weather has, however, prevented the usual spring cleaning up of loggers' and settlers' slashings, thus leaving a greater menace when dangerous weather arrives.

Except in rare cases, with unusual care and under permit and supervision, it will not be safe to burn now before fall and the winter's accumulation will create serious hazard all summer. For this reason preparations are being made for strict enforcement of all fire laws, especially those dealing with clearing and with spark-emitting engines.

Warning the public of approaching weather conducive to forest fires will this year be recognized by the United States weather bureau as a necessary service comparable to storm and frost warnings. In addition to the telegraphic forecasts of hot and windy weather usually furnished the private and public patrol forces, predictions will also be mailed to post-offices in forest regions, for conspicuous posting where they may be seen by people likely to use fire in clearing and by campers and travelers. A special card has been devised bearing fire precautions on the margin.

The beautiful silver oak, which was the pride of the local postoffice force and the most beautiful of many beautiful shrubs and plants in the post-office window garden, has been set out in the City park. The oak was grown from a seed brought from Honolulu by D. P. Blue. Bert Freeman acted as foster father to the tree which has now gained a height of about 6 feet. It is a strange variety and will make a valuable addition to the park if it can withstand the rigors of the winters.

Forests of Crater Lake National Park

The heavy mantle of the beautiful coniferous forests in Crater Lake national park is second only to Crater Lake itself in attractiveness, according to a publication by J. F. Pernot, entitled "Forests of Crater Lake National Park." Just issued by the department of the interior. "Within the confines of the park," says Mr. Pernot, "are more than a dozen cone-bearing species—pines, firs, hemlock, and others—growing in pure bodies or mingled together, forming a confused broken cover. The various trees of the southern Cascades are not generally scattered throughout the mountains, but are distributed in fairly well defined zones at different altitudes."

In this publication, which may be purchased from the superintendent of documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C., for 20 cents, are descriptions of the principal species and illustrations showing characteristic types of each tree. Over all of the region excepting the summits of the highest peaks, is spread a wonderful array of evergreen trees, clothing the slopes with dense solemn forests or dotted around mountain meadows, canyons and crater rim.

The traveler who makes only a fleeting trip to the park, sees the lake but once, and then passes on will overlook much of the best that the region can show. It is better to remain longer within the borders, to camp beneath its hemlocks and firs, to explore its peaks and forests, and look often and long upon its lake, whose blue waters and wonderful tree and cliff setting leave memories that can never be lost.

Jackson Co. Boy Wins High Praise

State Superintendent of Public Instruction Churchill has announced that he has completed arrangements for sending the boys and girls who will win the capital prize in the industrial club work at the state fair to the Oregon Agricultural College for the boys' and girls' summer school.

Twenty-one children were successful in winning these prizes at the last state fair. The prizes consist of a membership in the short course at the Agricultural College with all expenses paid.

"The boys' and girls' club work, which is carried on co-operatively by the state department of education, the extension service of the Oregon Agricultural College and the United States Bureau of Agriculture is increasing in interest to such an extent that clubs are being formed in every section of Oregon," said Superintendent Churchill recently.

"Since the first of the year I have had two field workers, N. C. Maris and L. P. Harrington, continuously engaged in forming clubs in the state. The work of the Agricultural College in sending to the members of these clubs bulletins on how to select seeds and care for the growing crops, and also bulletins on canning and sewing, has made a wonderful advancement in the standard of the work done by the school children. The example of Claus Charley of Jackson county shows what a wholesome influence one boy may have in this work. At the state fair in 1914 he won the state prize on his corn. The next year through the efforts of the county school superintendent and one of the Medford banks fifty boys of Jackson county were supplied with seed corn selected from Claus Charley's prize-winning corn."

W. B. Penniston has moved his lapidary from the rooms at the rear of the ground floor of the Elks temple to quarters in the room next to Lamkin's real estate office on East Main. He has a fine collection of the beautiful polished agates which are found in the rough state over in the desert near Eagle Point and other valley points.

Increase Amount Postal Deposits

Larger postal savings deposits will now be accepted at the postoffice. This is made possible by an important amendment to the postal savings act just approved by President Wilson. A postal savings depositor may now have an account amounting to $1,000 upon which interest will be paid. Formerly $500 was the maximum amount he could have to his credit. This enlargement of postal savings facilities will be very gratifying to thousands of depositors who have already reached the old $500 limit and are anxious to entrust more of their savings to Uncle Sam. Another feature of the amendment that will avoid further embarrassment to the public and to postal officials is the doing away with the limit on the amount that could be accepted from a depositor monthly. Under the old law only $100 could be deposited in a calendar month. The amendment abolishes this restriction. While the postal savings system has already proved a signal success as is shown by the fact that more than half a million depositors have over eighty million dollars standing to their credit, still it has fallen short of meeting the full demands of the public because of the restrictions which have now been eliminated. Postmaster General Burleson and Third Assistant Postmaster General Dockery have been tireless in their efforts to secure a modification of the limitations and the new liberalizing legislation is particularly gratifying to them.
